The presence of Haridass and Sodamma added a beautiful cultural touch to the celebration, giving our children a glimpse of the rich heritage of our villages and the true spirit of the harvest festival.

Through their folk songs, stories, and simple yet powerful messages, they helped our little ones understand the importance of farmers, gratitude for nature, and the joy of togetherness. The children watched with excitement and curiosity as they learned about traditions that have been passed down through generations.

Dressed in colourful traditional attire, our students participated enthusiastically and enjoyed every moment of this special celebration. It was not just a festival, but a wonderful learning experience that connected them to our roots and values.

Never stop learning, because learning never stops teaching you.”

By Suvasini

Learning is a lifelong process that helps us grow both personally and intellectually. The quote “Never stop learning, because learning never stops teaching you” reminds us that education is not limited to classrooms or textbooks. Every experience in life — success or failure — teaches us valuable lessons that shape our future.

In today’s fast-changing world, continuous learning is very important. New ideas, technologies, and discoveries appear every day, and learning helps us adapt to these changes. It also improves our creativity, confidence, and problem-solving skills. A person who keeps learning becomes more knowledgeable and open-minded.

Moreover, learning helps us understand ourselves and the world around us better. It teaches patience, discipline, and the importance of hard work. Even great scientists, leaders, and artists never stopped learning throughout their lives.

In conclusion, learning never truly ends. It continues as long as we remain curious and willing to grow. By keeping an open mind and a desire to learn, we can achieve success and become better human beings.
